

great people

doing
great things

Nearly 10,000 provincial public servants are working together on a common goal, which is to build a great Nova Scotia for our families, our businesses, our communities, and our future.

The people who dedicate themselves to public service are men and women who reflect the province's best attributes – resourcefulness, innovation, and commitment.

Provincial Public Service Week (October 6–12) is an opportunity to recognize their hard work and commitment.

They are great people doing great things for Nova Scotians.
