2. Message from the Minister and Deputy Minister

We are pleased to present the Accountability Report for the Nova Scotia Department of Communities, Culture and Heritage for 2017-18. This report highlights last year's progress in meeting our Business Plan objectives and outlines our strategic priorities for the year ahead.

Our work and mandate are fundamentally about investing in the people of Nova Scotia – in their communities and businesses, ideas, arts, culture and heritage, learning, health and well-being. When we invest in these areas, we strengthen our province, and provide new opportunities for economic growth while also ensuring that we have strong, empowered and healthy citizens from birth to their later years.

In 2017-18, 68 per cent of the department's budget was invested directly into communities through various programs. This represents about $57 million dollars flowing to community libraries and museums; recreation facilities; arts, culture and sport organizations; professional and aspiring artists; festivals and events; communities; businesses who want to make their premises more accessible and welcoming; and organizations that are working to reduce poverty and make our province's communities stronger.

Just over one year ago, we launched the province's first Culture Action Plan which helps advance the well-being and prosperity of our communities through the promotion, preservation, innovation and celebration of culture, heritage and languages. The plan is guiding Nova Scotia forward to make the province a recognized leader where cultural identity, expression and economy prosper. A place where all people honour and embrace our province's diversity and heritage, and benefit from leveraging our creative strengths. We strive to be a leader in cultural stewardship and make our province a place where more citizens have access to opportunities for healthy, active living. With the Culture Action Plan, we also committed to sharing more stories about Nova Scotians. We are working to address systemic racism; advancing cultural diversity, and doing more to preserve and celebrate our Mi'kmaw culture and heritage.

Our work, and the investments we are making in culture, arts, sport and recreation are paying off and yielding economic and social benefits for Nova Scotians. Culture and sport contributed $1.03 billion to the provincial economy in 2016. Culture and sport job numbers grew over the same seven years, reaching just under 17,000 jobs in 2016. These sectors are economic drivers, and there is tremendous opportunity for growth, especially in exports. As well, our province's culture, arts, sport and recreation yield social benefits. Our work helps ensure we understand, and leverage, these social benefits. In 2018-19, we will make strategic investments to strengthen the economy, drive social benefits, and ensure our province has strong and empowered communities.

4. Department Highlights 2017/18

- Body Worlds RX – The Museum of Natural History hosted the largest touring exhibition company in the world. The exhibit attracted great interest from January to April, 2018 and set a new attendance record of 94,122 visitors to the museum. Body Worlds RX offered a unique opportunity to explore the biology and physiology of the human body and see the dramatic effects of disease while encouraging healthy living to all museum visitors. The museum saw senior visitation increase 10 times, adult visitation triple and youth visitation almost double. School group visitation rose from 503 to 7,685 students.
- Bun is Bàrr – As part of an awareness campaign based in Gaelic tradition of Nova Scotia, Gaelic Affairs partnered with Communities, Sport and Recreation to develop a mini-documentary on the Bun is Bàrr Master-Apprentice program. This mini-documentary, launched during Gaelic Nova Scotia Month 2018 in May, highlights the importance of international learning in Gaelic Nova Scotia where apprentices learn about Gaelic culture from Gaelic speaking elders. The intent is to raise awareness of the importance of engaging Gaelic elders and fortifying Gaelic culture and language with present and future generations of Nova Scotians.
- Mi'kmaw Culture – CCH worked with the Mi'kmaw Native Friendship Centre to launch a successful "What I Wish You Knew" tile exhibit at the Museum of Natural History on the experience of the urban Mi'maq community with input from 50 community members.
- New Partnerships – The Office of Acadian Affairs and Francophonie focused on community engagement and outreach through a new six-person Acadian Affairs and Francophonie Advisory Committee that hosted its first meeting in January, 2018. The committee offers a direct means of informing the Minister of Acadian Affairs and Francophonie on the needs, challenges and opportunities in the Acadian community.
- Helping Communities Get Land Titles – Government began work to help African Nova Scotians get title to land on which they live by investing in supports for the communities of North Preston, East Preston, and Cherry Brook in the Halifax Regional Municipality and Lincolntonville and Sunnyville in Guysborough County.
- Historic Cookbook – The Nova Scotia Archives launched a cookbook that gathers recipes from 150 years of culinary history. Nova Scotia Cookery: Then and Now contains many recipes that call for, and celebrate, the use of local ingredients. The cookbook features a selection of historic recipes from the archives that were given a modern interpretation by chefs.
- Celebrating Canada 150 – As part of the celebrations marking the 150th anniversary of Canada's Confederation, CCH provided about 170 community organizations funding to celebrate heritage and culture in various ways. Rendez-Vous 2017 Tall Ship Regatta was a highlight of the 2017 celebrations.

5. Measuring Our Performance

2017 Platform Commitments

The department is tasked to continue to work across departments, with stakeholders, community partners, and Nova Scotians to implement the Culture Action Plan; champion and support the voluntary sector to help us build strong and vibrant communities in our province. To achieve a collective impact to build a stronger province, the department's mandate for government's second term includes the following commitments and actions taken:

Commitments	ACTIONS TAKEN IN 2017-2018
Create a $1M Small Business ACCESS-Ability Program	Launched the program in December, 2017 and funded 17 projects by March, 2017 throughout Nova Scotia such as business ramps to make entrances accessible.
Increase the Community Access-Ability Program to $1M	Government increased its commitment to this grant program from $150,000 to $950,000 in 2017-18 for facilities such as libraries, community halls, shelters and group homes.
Remain committed to partnering with our creative industries.	Actions relating to this commitment are described in the Nova Scotia Culture Action Plan Theme 6: Drive Awareness and Economic Growth of the Culture Sector, which is reported on in the following section of this report.

Nova Scotia's Culture Action Plan: Creativity and Community

This plan brings life to the department's mandate, working with partners across government and community to build the well-being and prosperity of Nova Scotia's diverse and creative communities. With the support of other departments, CCH is working on 60 specific actions that will promote, develop, preserve, and celebrate the province's culture, heritage, identity, and languages.

Theme 1 – Promote Mi'kmaw Culture

We need to do more to acknowledge and embrace the significance of Mi'kmaw culture – a message we heard from the culture community and the Mi'kmaq. We must promote and preserve this culture while simultaneously taking steps to enrich and maximize it.

PROPOSED STRATEGIC ACTIONS	ACTIONS TAKEN IN 2017-2018
Acknowledge and support Mi'maw interpretation and ownership of Mi'kmaw culture – enabling Mi'kmaq telling Mi'kmaw stories.	Nova Scotia Museums management and curatorial staff have initiated a repatriation working group to review best practices. Members of the group met with colleagues from New Brunswick, the Yukon and Ottawa to learn from recent repatriation initiatives and are reviewing policy and procedural implications for the NSM. Next steps include dialogue with the Mi'kmaw community. Through the Nova Scotia Archives, additional Mi'kmaq material was scanned and added to the transcribe site. The George Greed Mi'kmaq petroglyphs virtual exhibit launched in August 2017. We have consulted with the Department of Justice regarding the final disposition of Nova Scotian records from the National Inquiry into Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls.
Enhance opportunities for Mi'kmaq cultural expression through collaboration and support of crafts, powwows and mawiomi'l, arts, feasts, sporting events and other cultural activities.	Actions were undertaken to move towards a more functional and meaningful relationship between Nova Scotian Mi'kmaq and the Province. An emphasis was placed on more culturally relevant sport programs and opportunities for Mi'kmaq youth, more active and healthy Mi'kmaq youth. Initiatives undertaken included:

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Negotiated bilateral details with Sport Canada that will see approximately $1 million invested over five years to build the capacity of the Mi'kmaw Sport Council and enhance culturally relevant sport programming for Mi'kmaq youth and children. • Partnered with Mi'kmaq leaders at the Trails Strategy Coordinating Group table in preparation for the launch of the strategy and its ongoing coordination. • Worked with community, provincial and municipal partners to put together a successful bid to attract the 2020 North American Indigenous Games (NAIG) to Halifax.
Create a Mi'kmaw Cultural Liaison position within government to facilitate our work with Mi'kmaw artists, culture workers and teachers, and to improve understanding and access to government culture programs and services.	Began work to create a Mi'kmaw Cultural Liaison position in the department. When staffed, the liaison will work to enhance opportunities for Mi'kmaq cultural expression through collaboration to support powwows and mawiomí'l, arts, feasts, sporting events and other cultural activities. The liaison will also facilitate work with Mi'kmaw artists, culture workers and teachers to improve understanding and access to cultural programs and services.

Theme 2 – Promote Creativity and Innovation

Culture helps drive successful economies and communities. Creativity and innovation spur a thriving, diverse array of cultural enterprises. From a bottom-line perspective, that means economic success, and from a social cohesion and immigration perspective, it means more attractive communities.

PROPOSED STRATEGIC ACTIONS	ACTIONS TAKEN IN 2017-2018
Creation of a Culture Innovation Program that recognizes and supports innovative cultural initiatives that address social priorities and opportunities. This program will contain some targeted investment to support the development of culture hubs in communities, such as museums and libraries and will also support innovative community	The Culture Innovation Fund was launched in January 2018 and supported 31 projects in 2017/18 with total investment of $1.5 million. The fund has helped foster valuable partnerships and community capacity building including for: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • NSCAD and Phoenix House which are working together to help youth learn through art.

initiatives that enhance economic, social and cultural activities in our towns and cities.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Dartmouth North Community and Trufaux which are addressing food insecurity through film. • The Antigonish Theatre which is offering relaxed performances for those with cognitive challenges.
Work with community organizations to support the not-for-profit and voluntary sectors, recognizing the essential role of volunteers in community and culture activities.	Met with representatives of not-for-profit organizations across Nova Scotia to help them access the Department's Communities, Sports and Recreation programs. Built leadership capacity of female volunteers hosting the Canadian Association for the Advancement of Women and facilitated leadership modules. Supported municipalities in the process of updating Physical Activity Strategies with the engagement of volunteer-based community organizations.
Work within the Department of Communities, Culture and Heritage and with culture organizations to review funding programs to ensure they are as effective and transparent as possible.	The department continued to review programs by looking at program application rates, where investments are being made, outcomes met, and evaluating whether there are barriers preventing traditionally marginalized groups from accessing them. Data shows there is increased awareness and interest in programs by priority populations. Ongoing review in 2017-18 by the Office of the Auditor General also helped identify the need to document and streamline the process. CCH worked to further align project funding with government priorities, including the Culture Action Plan and SHIFT: Nova Scotia's Action Plan for an Aging Population.

Theme 3 – Strengthen Education, Partnerships and Understanding

The more we can expose our children to culture and creative expression in our schools, the better off we will be as a province that values, inspires, and incubates original, even daring, talent. At the same time, we want to ensure our culture and creative workers are taught entrepreneurship and marketing, to help expand their successes.

PROPOSED STRATEGIC ACTIONS	ACTIONS TAKEN IN 2017-2018
Expand and build on existing educational partnerships related to culture, such as working with the book publishing industry to promote Nova Scotia content in teaching resources.	The department continued to work closely with the Department of Education and Early Childhood Development and the province’s book publishers to foster feasible procurement practices purposely designed to accommodate more Nova Scotian books and stories in Nova Scotian schools. There is also ongoing work with the provincial libraries and book publishers to ensure more digital copies of Nova Scotia books are available for loan to library card holders.

Plans are underway to provide the training to other library regions across the province. The department supported three learning opportunities on the role of libraries, archives and other cultural memory institutions in preserving and respecting traditional knowledge and language with Ms. Camille Callison. Ms. Callison is the Indigenous Services Librarian, Liaison Librarian for Anthropology, Native Studies and Social Work and a member of the Indigenous Advisory Circle at the University of Manitoba. She is a board member of the Canadian Federation of Library Associations, and a member of the Canadian Commission for UNESCO Memory of the World Committee and Sector Commission on Culture, Communications and Information.

Theme 4 – Advance Cultural Diversity

While we have been blessed by diversity, we need to also acknowledge there are things in our society that must change, must improve. A culture is not just built on successes, pride, and goodwill; a culture also holds on to our defeats, our grief, and our most shameful decisions.

PROPOSED STRATEGIC ACTIONS	ACTIONS TAKEN IN 2017-2018
Update the province’s Multiculturalism Act of 1989 to better reflect and support the Nova Scotia of today and tomorrow.	The department had begun work reviewing the Multiculturalism Act in 2016/17 including conducting a jurisdictional review. Work was deferred, with efforts directed to advance anti-racism work in 2017-18.
Work collaboratively with the community, government, departments and agencies, and others, to continue to address systemic racism and discrimination.	The Nova Scotia Government was the first province to proclaim the International Decade for Persons of African Decent (2015-2024). Theme 5 – Excellence in Cultural Stewardship

Culture plays a major role in our social and individual lives, shaping community identity, building pride of place, connecting us to our natural surroundings, and bringing together people from different backgrounds.

PROPOSED STRATEGIC ACTIONS	ACTIONS TAKEN IN 2017-2018
Position the Nova Scotia Museum system to tell the province’s story while increasing relevance and attractiveness for visitors through strategic, targeted investments.	The Nova Scotia Museum of Natural History set a new attendance record of 94,122 visitors when it hosted the Body World RX exhibit during winter 2018. This highlighted the need for a plan to reach new audiences and modernize our approach to making museums attractive to visitors of all ages.
Work with community partners to implement the Shared Recreation and Trails Strategies to foster active healthy living. Increase inclusion and access to recreation for all Nova Scotians.	The department is collaborating with Recreation Nova Scotia on implementing the Recreation Shared Strategy. A Trails Strategy is in development. The department coordinated the 2017 Recreation Nova Scotia Conference in Membertou First Nation (the first time in a Mi’kmaq community). The theme of the conference, “Holistic Recreation: Planting Seeds, Growing Together” aligned and advanced the Recreation Shared Strategy and Cultural Action Plan and left a legacy of connection and working with our Mi’kmaq communities.
Enhance communications between the Department of Communities, Culture and Heritage and community museums across the province.	Department staff worked with community museums on an individual basis to address their needs through the Community Museums Assistance Program (CMAP).
Work with stakeholders to promote and increase awareness of Nova Scotia’s built heritage and its value to our province and identity.	The department funded Halifax Regional Municipality $15,000 to host the 2017 Nova Scotia Heritage Conference on Cultural Heritage Destinations and the Heritage Housing Industry. Attended by 113 heritage stakeholders, the conference explored the need for a provincial Heritage Strategy and more opportunities to promote our unique cultural heritage assets. The coordinator of the Heritage Property Program delivered a presentation at the 2017 National Trust-APT Conference in Ottawa. Nova Scotia promoted its Heritage Property Act that supports our unique heritage and cultural assets. There are 298 registered provincial heritage

	properties, more than 1500 registered municipal heritage properties, and 7 approved municipal heritage conservation districts. The Heritage Property Program hosted a day-long facilitated session with all municipal Heritage Officers to explore opportunities to better support and promote existing heritage conservation districts and future cultural landscapes across Nova Scotia.

Theme 6 – Drive Awareness and Economic Growth of the Culture sector

Creative Industries are a strategic growth sector in government’s work to create inclusive economic growth. Part of the challenge to grow is making sure people and markets, here in Nova Scotia and far beyond, know what is happening in our culture sector. Success stories abound, but sometimes aren’t told; many aspects of the creative sector are thriving already, and should thrive even more with more time in the spotlight, more awareness and access, and more support.

PROPOSED STRATEGIC ACTIONS	ACTIONS TAKEN IN 2017-2018
Create a strategic, government-wide approach to the development, attraction and funding of events. These events will showcase the province’s sport, culture, heritage and competitive advantages to national and international audiences. A coordinated approach will ensure events are properly funded and deliver measurable results and return on investment.	Began a coordinated approach to ensure events are properly funded and deliver measurable results and return on investment. For example, the province, along with other key stakeholders, supported the successful bid by the Mi’kmaq Sport Council of Canada in 2017-18 to host the 2020 North American Indigenous Games in Nova Scotia.

It is a new model to increase Nova Scotia content in the film industry by supporting local writers and producers. The fund will also encourage diversity and gender parity within the industry and support the expansion of global markets and audiences.
Use the existing Creative Industries Fund to help businesses and not-for-profits export globally, targeting the music, book	In 2017-18, CCH invested $2 million dollars in more than 67 projects from 60 Nova Scotia cultural organizations and businesses. SHIFT: Nova Scotia’s Action Plan for an Aging Population

Shift is a government-wide initiative led by the Department of Seniors. In collaboration with other government departments the Department of Communities, Culture and Heritage is helping to reframe the discussion around aging and the many benefits of our demographic shift. An aging population reflects advances in population health and improvements in the social and economic well-being of Nova Scotians.

Goal: Value the Social and Economic Contributions of Older Adults

Entrepreneurship represents an opportunity for older adults to tap into and build on years of experience and networks, while having the flexibility and control they might not have had in a traditional workplace. Older, experienced entrepreneurs also have much to offer in knowledge, experience, and mentoring.

COMMITMENTS	CCH ACTIONS TAKEN IN 2017-2018
Value unpaid community and volunteer work Older adults keep our communities going. The site has an emphasis on encouraging physically active lifestyles including in older adults.

Scotians play a huge role in sustaining community life and not-for-profit organizations through their unpaid work.	The department has begun developing Volunteer Nova Scotia, a volunteer matching site in collaboration with community and the federal partners. Many seniors want to volunteer but have difficulty knowing what opportunities are available. This site will help individuals and organizations map opportunities.

Goal: Promote Healthy, Active Living

Population health is an approach to health that aims to improve the health of the entire population and to reduce health inequities among population groups. In order to reach these objectives, it looks at and acts upon the broad range of factors and conditions that have a strong influence on our health.

Reduce the impact of poverty on health The costs of living (including food, housing, transportation, access to technology)—and by association, income security—are major barriers to health for older adults.	An investment of $110,000 was provided to the Mobile Food Market (Department of Health and Wellness and Disability Secretariat/Department of Community Services) to maintain the market's current locations in Halifax, as well as to explore options to expand services across the province. An additional $100,000 in grants, ranging from $4,500 to $31,000 was provided to organizations across the province. One example is the Thoughtful Food: Building Resiliency project in Middleton.
Promote physical activity and regular exercise Regular physical activity is important for healthy aging and has been shown to be a major factor in the ability of older adults to live independently and stay as healthy as possible.	Planning, informed by citizen surveys, was initiated to revise the Municipal Physical Activity Leadership program (MPAL) memorandums of understanding between the province and communities to better attract and serve aging adults and support action at a community level. About 200 people attended two stakeholder symposiums on physical activity that were held in March 2018 to engage and inform community leaders and stakeholders on the importance of physical activity and how to work together to build vibrant active communities. In January 2018, an online survey of municipal recreation directors across Nova Scotia was conducted to learn about municipal recreation

Goal: Support Aging in Place, Connected to Community Life

Creating supportive environments that foster autonomy and independence while helping older adults stay connected to their community is key to preventing social isolation and promoting healthy, active living.

COMMITMENTS	CCH ACTIONS TAKEN IN 2017-2018
Commitment: Support community transportation
Support community transportation When people lack transportation options, it severely limits their ability to participate in society and the economy and to access services, including health services. This is a particularly significant issue in rural areas.	The department worked with partners across government and the community to improve access to transportation across the province. This initiative will benefit rural Nova Scotians, older adults, those living in poverty, persons with disabilities and youth who currently lack access to transportation options in their communities.
Support social connections The World Health Organization emphasizes the importance of combatting social isolation by involving older adults in building socially inclusive and healthy communities for all ages.	In 2017-18, the department's Facility Access Grant Program guidelines were updated to include older adults as a priority population for funding support. Other Supported Initiatives: Bridgewater, Chester, Lunenburg and Liverpool curling clubs provided free programs and equipment to older adults. At the Queens Place Emera Centre, public skates and fitness classes and one-month fitness centre memberships were provided free to older adults. An investment of $50,000 was made to the Community Technology Network to undertake community Internet/digital literacy pilots for older adults across the province. An additional $20,000 from CCH (Diversity and Community Capacity Fund) was leveraged to ensure four additional pilots were undertaken in culturally diverse and marginalized communities.

Goal: Implementing the Plan

Programming needs to be culturally safe and address barriers and opportunities as defined by members of the community, to ensure that programs and services are accessible and relevant.

COMMITMENTS	CCH ACTIONS TAKEN IN 2017-2018
Base decisions and actions on evidence	The department began using 2016 census data, as well as statistics from the Community Data

It can be difficult to obtain reliable data to understand the experiences and circumstances of older adults within specific communities and involving factors like gender, ethnicity, socio-economics, and other aspects of identity.	Program to provide a broader understanding of our diverse communities and better representation of the province's demographics including our aging population. The department is undertaking a program audit that will provide an in-depth overview of who is currently served through our programs and where we need to adjust to meet the needs of all Nova Scotians.

Nova Scotia's Poverty Reduction Blueprint

Reducing poverty is a complex issue that crosses most government departments, requires the involvement of community, and benefits most from a collaborative approach. The Government of Nova Scotia made a $20 million dollar, four-year investment for Poverty Reduction. The goal is to work with and support innovative projects that are designed to address poverty and improve the lives of low-income Nova Scotians. The results, outcomes and approaches from these projects will help government know what has been most effective, and help form a Nova Scotia Poverty Reduction Blueprint that will guide actions to reduce poverty from 2021 onward.

- Goals:
- Building vibrant communities by investing in community expertise
 - Preventing poverty by breaking the cycle

9. Changes in Measures

Research by the department indicates that culture continues contribute significantly to Nova Scotian society and our economy. The department has two significant tools which provide information on the importance of culture to Nova Scotians and their communities, from an economic and social perspective, and allow us to track its impact. These tools help to benchmark and monitor progress of the Culture Action Plan.

Culture Satellite Account (CSA) is the result of collaboration among all 14 Federal-Provincial-Territorial jurisdictions in Canada that hired Statistics Canada to provide ongoing economic data for culture and sport. The CSA is an accounting framework and statistical tool that provides estimates of the economic contribution of culture and sport to the economy of each province and territory in Canada, it provides estimates of GDP (Gross Domestic Product), output and jobs. It also reveals trends in arts, cultural industries, heritage and sport, and provides economic information about trade and tourism.

Provincial/Territorial Culture Indicators (PTCI) from the CSA, released in February 2018, show that in 2016, Culture contributed $874 million to our provincial GDP and 13,719 Nova Scotians worked in the culture sector, while sport contributed $152 million and provided 2,760 jobs. We will continue to use the PTCI data from the CSA to measure economic importance of the culture and sport sectors. Additional CSA modules will provide additional economic data about culture and sport. The new expansion on trade, for example, shows 61 per cent growth in the export of culture products from Nova Scotia from 2010 to 2016. Exports of sport products grew 35 per cent over the same period.

The Nova Scotia Culture Index Study provides data on how Nova Scotians participate in, are aware of, and value all major aspects of culture in the province. It is a research tool created to gauge the social importance of culture in the province and to reveal how Nova Scotians interact with culture. The Nova Scotia Culture Index Study measures, tracks, compares and analyzes our citizens' responses to culture over time. A shortened survey of the Study was completed in February 2018, and collected data based on randomized telephone interviews conducted with 1002 Nova Scotia residents.

The 2018 study highlights include:

- When asked if, "Culture helps create community identity," 78 per cent of respondents agreed that it does.
- When asked if respondents thought, "Culture helps attract visitors from outside Nova Scotia", 77 per cent agreed that it did.
- 74 per cent of Nova Scotians believe that, "Culture does help connect people from different communities and backgrounds."
- 88 per cent of residents agree that, "Engaging children in culture is important to their overall development."
