Accountability Statement

The Accountability Report of the Nova Scotia Human Rights Commission for the year ended March 31, 2022, is prepared pursuant to the Finance Act and government policies and guidelines. These authorities require the reporting of outcomes against the Nova Scotia Human Rights Commission Business Plan for the fiscal year just ended. The reporting of the Commission outcomes necessarily includes estimates, judgments, and opinions by Commission management.

We acknowledge that this Accountability Report is the responsibility of the Nova Scotia Human Rights Commission management. The report is, to the extent possible, a complete and accurate representation of outcomes relative to the goals and priorities set out in the Nova Scotia Human Rights Commission 2021-2022 Business Plan.

Message from the Director and CEO

The Nova Scotia Human Rights Commission remains committed to creating inclusive communities and to promoting the advancement of human rights in Nova Scotia by fostering positive, productive, and respectful relationships.

In fiscal 2021-2022, the Commission continued to respond to the challenges presented by the COVID-19 pandemic by adapting service delivery and innovating to engage with the public. The Commission delivered education and training through virtual and hybrid approaches. These approaches increased accessibility and broadened participation geographically.

The Commission initiated new partnerships within African Nova Scotian communities to launch the Human Rights on the Road series of education and engagement sessions. The Commission also hosted virtual events in recognition of significant human rights dates including the International Day for the Elimination of Racial Discrimination and International Human Rights Day. Initial meetings and discussion with Mi'kmaq community members initiated the development of a pathway to strengthening relationships toward reconciliation.

Amid high inquiry volume, staffing challenges related to the COVID-19 pandemic, and emerging issues related to public health mandates, the Commission reduced its backlog of files awaiting investigation and continues to implement process improvements. Commission staff engaged in on-going learning and development to increase awareness of issues affecting equity-seeking communities and ensure service delivery is culturally responsive and trauma-informed.

I would like to extend sincere thanks to the staff, management, and Commissioners for their commitment, resilience, and work to serve the public during these challenging times.

Measuring Our Performance

Core Responsibilities and Services for 2021-22

#1

Outcome: Communities within Nova Scotia are more inclusive

Goals: Advance Priority Human Rights Issues

Actions:

1. The Commission will focus efforts on addressing longstanding issues of systemic racism related to people of African descent.
2. The Commission will develop a framework and capacity to contribute to reconciliation with First Nations communities.
3. The Commission will increase its visibility in correctional facilities and address human rights issues identified in the corrections system.
4. The Commission will continue to identify emerging human rights issues to guide it in its work.

Performance Measures:

- The Commission will organize up to 5 community meetings to engage the public on priority human rights issues, such as systemic racism and reconciliation.
 - The Commission engaged with the African Nova Scotian community and the public at large on priority human rights issues impacting the Black community by hosting the following events:
 - January 12, 2022 – Collaborated with the Delmore Buddy Daye Learning Institute to host a virtual Human Rights on the Road Session for the African Nova Scotian Community.
 - March 08, 2022 – Hosted a one-on-one conversation entitled Human Rights Through Our Eyes: A Conversation with Senator Wanda Thomas Bernard in celebration of African Heritage Month.
 - March 22, 2022 – Partnered with the Halifax Public Libraries to organize a panel discussion entitled Through Our Eyes: Reimagining Human Rights in the Fight Against Anti-Black Racism in recognition of United Nations International Day for the Elimination of Racial Discrimination.

- Commission staff delivered several culturally relevant training sessions to Nova Scotia public sector employees on specific human rights related issues pertaining to the Black community.
- The Commission engaged with various Mi'kmaq-serving organizations under the umbrella of the Confederacy of Mainland Mi'kmaq and provided an overview of the Commission's work and initiated a pathway to foster better relationships with the organizations and the community at large.
- Initial work has begun around knowledge mobilization to channel a pathway for the development a Truth and Reconciliation framework for the Commission.
- Commission staff engaged and collaborated with various equity seeking groups on priority human rights issues to gain an understanding of their concerns and work towards building community relations.
- Staff of the Commission will continue to visit provincial correctional facilities to meet with persons in custody and management to address human rights issues.
 - Due to the COVID-19 pandemic and public health restrictions, Commission staff were not able to enter provincial correctional facilities. Staff continued to assess concerns from persons in custody through the intake process.

#2

Outcome: Leader and innovator in the protection and promotion of human rights

Goal: Modernize the Human Rights Commission

Actions:

1. The Commission will expand its online training resources to provide free public education for the province on a wide range of human rights issues.
2. The Commission will enhance its communication strategy and continue to expand its use of digital media platforms to promote human rights.
3. The Commission will develop tools to enhance efficiency and transparency in human rights dispute resolution.
4. The Commission will provide extensive training and development opportunities to staff.
5. The Commission will fully incorporate restorative principles into all aspects of its work.

Performance Measures:

- The Commission will clear the backlog of complaints related to the COVID-19 pandemic and continue to ensure that investigations of complaints are approached restoratively.
 - The Commission reduced the backlog of complaints pending investigation and continues to work through process improvements to further reduce delays resulting from the COVID-19 pandemic.
- The Commission will continue to lead CASHRA in the development of timely policies to address emerging human rights issues as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic.
 - The Commission actively participated in the CASHRA Roundtable on Human Rights Implications of COVID-19. The Commission provided insight into the impacts on Nova Scotians to the roundtable.

#3

Outcome: Capacity is strengthened on human rights issues

Goals: Advance Dialogue and Human Rights Practices

Actions:

1. The Commission will highlight and build upon advancements in human rights work by contributing to the national conversation surrounding human rights issues.
2. The Commission will continue to strengthen government and media relations.
3. The Commission will encourage the adoption of best human rights practices by:
 - a. strengthening connections with stakeholders such as professionals, volunteers, communities, businesses, and organizations involved in human rights work;
 - b. providing tools, resources, and training that promote human rights;
 - c. contributing to a stronger national partnership of human rights commissions.
4. The Commission will enhance mechanisms to give voice to affected communities, on human rights issues.
5. The Commission will provide support for efforts to increase diversity within public institutions in the province.

Performance Measures:

- The Commission will participate in a minimum of 5 workshops, presentations and/or information sessions on topics related to human rights in the 2021-22 fiscal year.
 - The Commission hosted a film screening “Is the Crown at War with Us?” and panel discussion with Mi’kmaq community members in honor of Mi’kmaq History Month.
 - The Commission is collaborating with the Michaelle Jean Foundation, Canadian Race Relations Foundation, and the Canadian Human Rights Commission to host a Human Rights focused breakout session during the 2022 National Black Canadian Summit being hosted in Halifax from July 29-31, 2022.
